THE NORWAY ADVERTISER

(OXFORD COUNTY, ME.)

NUMBER 19. MAY 8, 1914, NORWAY, MAINE. VOLUME XLV.

Charles Lorenzo Hathaway.

Charles Lorenzo Hathaway died at 1 o'clock, a. m. at his residence on Main street, May 2nd, of Bright's disease at the age of 74 years and 7 months.
He was born in Norway, Sept. 6th, 1839, the son of Lorenzo and Lydia F. Hathaway. His father was engaged in active business in Norway for many years.
Mr. Hathaway always made his home in Norway. He was a carpenter and builder till 1882, when he went into the lumber business carrying a full line of builders' supplies. He has done a large business.
He was a 32nd degree Mason, a Shriner and belonged to the I. O. O. F., K. of P., and G. A. R. Religiously he was a Universalist and politically a Republican.
He married Clara H. Dunham in New Haven, Conn., March 29, 1860. She died Dec. 9, 1912. Their only child, Bartle D., was born Oct. 11, 1867 and died Aug. 25, 1876. His second wife was Nellie F. French. They were married in Portland, April 26, 1913. He is survived by his wife, one sister, Julia E. Hathaway, and one brother, George F. Hathaway, both of Norway.
Mr. Hathaway enlisted in the 23rd Maine and served until the regiment was mustered out.
The funeral was from his late residence, Monday, May 4, Rev. E. C. Miller officiating. The bearers were Chas. E. Ridlon, Wm. C. Leavitt, Geo. W. Holmes and S. B. Cummings. The burial in Pine Grove cemetery.
The funeral was largely attended by the several orders of which he was a member, and friends and relatives. The business places in the village were closed from 1 o'clock until 8.

Mr. Hathaway was always ready to do his part in promoting the good of his native town and village. For years he managed the Norway Opera House and after the destructive fire that destroyed so much of the business part of the village he was among the most energetic and active in rebuilding, and it is a matter of history that in the short space of a year the greater part of the village was rebuilt and much better than the old village.
For a number of winters he has spent several months traveling and in the south until the last two winters. He was taken sick in the early fall while in the west and part of this country and his condition has been considered serious all the past winter though the greater part of the time he was able to be about the house and on the street. He was one of the older business men of the village and one of the few remaining links that connected the present with the Norway of the past.

Co. D. Notes.
Major George McL. Presson, commanding the 1st Battalion is to pay a visit to Co. D and its commanding officers in the near future. Major Presson is anxious that the Battalion be in position to recruit to war strength within 48 hours of receipt of call for troops.
The Volunteer Act just approved by President Wilson provides an enlisted strength of 1,380 men for a Regiment recruited to war strength. This is a considerable increase in strength. The Field Service Regulations of 1913 provided only 1,500 enlisted men to a Regiment.
A Regiment consists of 12 companies of 150 enlisted men each, in addition to its 61 officers. The organization of a company of a battalion is as follows:
1 captain,
1 first lieutenant,
1 second lieutenant,
1 quartermaster sergeant,
6 sergeants,
2 corporals,
2 musketeers,
1 artificer,
12 privates.
Total of 160 enlisted strength.
2nd Lieut. Guy I. Swett has been appointed recruiting officer for war. In the event of the Regiment mobilizing at Augusta, Lt. Swett, with a detail of two privates, would remain behind and endeavor to recruit the company to war strength at once.
There is reason to believe that a large party of College boys would enlist if war should be declared.
The local rifle range has been opened and all of the men have been urged to put in as much practice as possible.
The officers of Co. D, 2nd Inf., will participate in camp of instruction for all officers of Infantry and officers of the staff departments, which will be held at the State campground, Augusta, Maine, June 9 to 13, inclusive, 1914.
ALTON E. WHITEHEAD.

The story is entitled "After Hidden Treasures" and is dedicated to Mr. Pendexter's wife, Helen. These stories narrate the adventures of two boys among the fishermen of the Maine coast, Sidney Luce, who is a young fisherman and Jeff Friddle, a young lumberman who by good fortune helps Sidney out of a tight place and they join forces in setting up in the fishing business. In the exciting adventure through which they pass they have the counsel of Captain Trunk, a retired shipmaster with a wooden leg, who always proves a host to the boys when they find themselves involved with the foes of the Jim Cove band of smugglers led by Sampson Bass. The adventures are full of excitement and picturesque life on the coast and the fishing industry.

Co. D. Notes.
Major George McL. Presson, commanding the 1st Battalion is to pay a visit to Co. D and its commanding officers in the near future. Major Presson is anxious that the Battalion be in position to recruit to war strength within 48 hours of receipt of call for troops.
The Volunteer Act just approved by President Wilson provides an enlisted strength of 1,380 men for a Regiment recruited to war strength. This is a considerable increase in strength. The Field Service Regulations of 1913 provided only 1,500 enlisted men to a Regiment.
A Regiment consists of 12 companies of 150 enlisted men each, in addition to its 61 officers. The organization of a company of a battalion is as follows:
1 captain,
1 first lieutenant,
1 second lieutenant,
1 quartermaster sergeant,
6 sergeants,
2 corporals,
2 musketeers,
1 artificer,
12 privates.
Total of 160 enlisted strength.
2nd Lieut. Guy I. Swett has been appointed recruiting officer for war. In the event of the Regiment mobilizing at Augusta, Lt. Swett, with a detail of two privates, would remain behind and endeavor to recruit the company to war strength at once.
There is reason to believe that a large party of College boys would enlist if war should be declared.
The local rifle range has been opened and all of the men have been urged to put in as much practice as possible.
The officers of Co. D, 2nd Inf., will participate in camp of instruction for all officers of Infantry and officers of the staff departments, which will be held at the State campground, Augusta, Maine, June 9 to 13, inclusive, 1914.
ALTON E. WHITEHEAD.

WELL DESERVED.

The Praise That Comes From Thankful Norway People.

One kidney remedy has known merit.

Norway People rely upon it.

That remedy is Doan's Kidney Pills.

Norway testimony proves it reliable.

W. O. Needham, retired farmer, Main St., Norway, Me., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills are the only kidney medicine I use and they always give me relief."

Sometimes, when I caught cold my kidneys were weakened. Several years ago I heard about Doan's Kidney Pills and I began using them. They got my kidneys working right, and when that was done the uric poison in my system was removed. I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Stone's Drug Store, and I know that they can be relied on."

If your back aches—if your kidneys bother you, don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask distinctly for Doan's Kidney Pills the same that Mr. Needham had—the remedy backed by home testimony. 50c all stores. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Opportunity Farm.

F. Forest Pease, manager of Opportunity Farm, a home for boys at New Gloucester, near Lewiston, is enthusiastic over the work being done there concerning which comparatively little is generally known.

Pease characterizes the farm as a school for boys who have been unfortunate in their family surroundings, or environment. Any boy between eight and 16 years of age, with a sound mind and body, will be accepted for a month's trial and he may remain if it is considered that the farm can be of help to him.

The farm was established two years ago, and is meeting with gratifying success. Its founder, Mr. Pease, was born in Lowell, Mass., not quite 30 years ago. He graduated from the Livermore Falls High school in this state, and studied for one year in the University of Maine, taking a special course, and another year in the Army and Navy school in Washington, D. C. He is a practical mechanic and has served as chief electrician aboard steamships.

Members of the Maine D. A. R., and other societies are assisting in the work of maintaining this farm whose needs are ever pressing.

In speaking of this venture Mr. Pease recently said: "We commenced operations with a few small boys and a wheelbarrow on land where pine, birch and blueberry bushes reigned supreme. We found the sod tough, and the potatoes scarce, but the wheelbarrow worked overtime, and the boys multiplied and we were happy."

"Weather conditions caused a deficit in our farming account last fall. However, the land is now ready for serious business, and good profits are likely to result next season."

"It is true that many of our boys come from overcrowded and wretched conditions and unfortunate companions rob them of ambition and self-respect. Others come from country towns and homes broken by misfortune. In every case they need someone to interest them in work and the possibilities which they themselves possess."

"Opportunity Farm justifies its name, for while the needs are great it has really passed the experimental stage. Opportunity Farm aims to supplement the work of the guardian or parent by relieving them of the responsibilities while in no way minimizing the natural claim of parenthood."

"To give the boys who need it a real home, and at the same time to encourage them to till the soil and to earn a living, would seem to require more effort, but Opportunity Farm does more than this for it gives real opportunity, in offering the boys an opportunity to earn something while they are at the farm."

"It is stimulating in them an interest in Maine and a desire to be a part of the best civil life of the state. The corporation now owns its farm. Mrs. Fannie A. Green having transferred her interest in the farm to the Opportunity Farm Association, and it now stands free of debt. More than that, there is at present a fund of some $2000 which is to be put into improvements. Work has already begun on enlarging the dormitory accommodations, and among other things a well is to be dug. There are now 18 boys on the farm."

With the State Board of Trade met in Portland a short time ago, Mr. Pease was present, and so interested one man that he wanted to know what the farm most needed. On learning that the most pressing need was an ox team, the man told him to buy a good yoke of oxen, paying $200 if necessary, and send the bill to him."

Mr. Pease had some difficulty in locating oxen that suited him, but finally found them (bandsome Durham) in Wilton, with the assistance of E. N. Blanchard, the Franklin county cattle king.

On arriving in Lewiston with his cattle, Dr. Anthony learned of the transaction and added a cart, making the outfit second to none, and valued at over $800.

The treasurer, Robert S. Thomas, reports all pledges paid, except a few outside the state, which could be called in at any time.—[Maine Farmer.]

you have the first symptom of a run-down system, and nervous people too often conceal their aches and pains and suffer in silence, while, if neglected, this condition often foreruns more serious trouble.

If those so afflicted would stop taking medicine containing alcohol or drugs, which menace the foundations of health, and just take the pure, strengthening nourishment in Scott's Emulsion, it would create new blood to pulsate through the organs, refresh their bodies and build up the whole nervous system. It is rich, sustaining nourishment, free from wines, alcohols or drugs. Shun substitutes.

Courtship Among Animals.

The Various Degrees of Conjugal Constancy Which Dumb Creatures Show.

Surprising though the statement may seem, it is a fact, borne out by the careful study of scientists, that practically every form of marriage exists in the animal world. Male animals even have their bachelor clubs, and little societies of animals are established among deer and antelope.

These societies usually consist of three or four young bucks, who range and feed together in peaceful companionship. They feed together in peaceful companionship. They feed together in peaceful companionship.

There are four distinct forms of marriages among monogamous animals. The first closely resembles the trial marriage, and the male selects a mate and is faithful to her as long as she pleases him, but when she no longer charms, he promptly divorces her and finds another mate.

The second type of animal marriage is that which lasts during the breeding season only. Some animals seek their mates again next season, but among rats, rabbits and squirrels the separation is permanent, although among foxes, coyotes and smaller animals, the father, who presumably hates the worries of domestic life, usually stays away until the children have been reared, and then returns.

The third type of animal marriage is that common among wild geese, pigeons and, possibly, owls. The union lasts through life, and if one of the pair dies the other never seeks a second mate, but mourns disconsolately until death.

The fourth type of marriage is the nearest approach to the ideal married life and, curiously enough, is found most commonly among wolves. Wolves marry for life, and only the death of one leaves the other free to marry again. Furthermore, there is even a genuine display of jealousy and affection between such animals. It is recorded that two wolves in the London Zoo were very jealous of each other and frequently quarreled.

Oddly enough, an unusually furious dispute, the male approached the female as if to bite her, but just as he reached her he stopped as if held back by something within him. The female then approached timidly, gently licked his face, and domestic happiness was once more restored.

Marriage, it appears, is almost universal in the animal world. Bachelors and spinsters are very rare, yet after the brief period of mourning is over the bereaved animal has little difficulty in finding a new mate.

Perhaps the most interesting point in regard to this subject is that animals, like men often have proved that monogamy is the ideal married state.

A polygamous race increase faster for a time and produces offspring of, apparently, unusual intelligence and development, but it is a notable fact that deer, which are most polygamous, are lowest down in the scale of development and are most seriously scourged by epidemic plagues.

The great objection to polygamy in animals is that only one parent—the weaker—has the care of the offspring, and that at the death of the father serious trouble often occurs among the survivors.

OLD FOLKS FIND NEW REMEDY RELIEVES ALL KIDNEY AND BLADDER MISERIES

Drives Rheumatic Pains Away, Relieves Backache and Bladder Disorders After A Few Doses Are Taken

Sleep disturbing bladder weaknesses, backache, rheumatism, and the many other kindred ailments which so commonly come with declining years, need no longer be a source of dread and misery to those who are past the middle age of life.

The new discovery, Croxone, overcomes all such disorders because it removes the very cause of the trouble. It soaks right into the kidneys, through the walls and linings, cleans out the little filtering glands and cells, and gives the kidneys new strength to do their work properly. It neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous uric acid substances that lodge in the joints and muscles, causing rheumatism, and makes the kidneys filter and sift out all the poisonous waste matter from the blood and drive it out of the system.

It matters not how old you are or how long you have suffered, Croxone is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results. You will find it different from all other remedies. There is nothing else on earth like it. It starts to work immediately and more than a few doses are seldom required to relieve even the most chronic, obstinate cases.

It is the most wonderful remedy ever made for restoring the lifeless organs to health and strength and ridding the system of every particle of uric acid, and you can take it with the utmost confidence that nothing on earth will so quickly cure such conditions.

You can obtain an original package of Croxone at trifling cost from any first-class druggist. All druggists are authorized to personally return the purchase price if Croxone should fail in a single case.

Those "Pipe Dreams."

The Editor Gets Letter Containing A Large Amount of Advice. What Do You Think of It?

EDITOR OF NORWAY ADVERTISER:

You had a "pipe dream" and put it in your paper. That's a good start, but you called people's attention to the possibilities, but are you going to work to make the dream come true?

Your first item is that Norway needs a dry cleansing and dyeing establishment. Well, put your board of trade at work to secure such an establishment. At first glance the idea looks good. Let your board of trade spend the money for a canvasser to visit every house in Norway and South Paris villages, and find the amount of that kind of business which is said to be possible in the course of a year. A woman, if you could get the right one, would do this canvassing better than a man. Then present the figures to parties whom the board may secure, by advertising or otherwise.

Then acquire a small business, ought to know about how much discount to put on the figures that the canvasser would obtain, and how to estimate the business from the surrounding territory. Don't stop with talking about it and putting a piece in the paper. Get busy, and accomplish something. It ought not to be any more difficult than was the task of securing an occupant for the shoe factory. To a person not acquainted with the dry cleansing and dyeing business, it looks as if Norway ought to be a good location, but opinions here won't carry much weight with the man who would handle the enterprise. He will want facts.

Your second item is that you want a combination butter and cheese factory, and you want the cheese manufactured out of the buttermilk from the butter factory. It is doubtful if anybody would care to eat such poor cheese as that would be, but it might be workable if it were mixed with a larger amount of good milk before beginning cheese making. That is another problem for your board of trade. It is also a case where the man to take hold of the enterprise would want facts, and where the board would need a canvasser to get the facts. Get busy.

(The writer is evidently thinking of the large, whole milk cheese. Buttermilk cheese is not that kind at all. It is more often the sour milk or Dutch cheese variety. It is something new though buttermilk is old, and put up in glass jars and sold in the market. It is fine tasting. It would be an addition to our food supply. In fact the writer ate a pound of it in two days the past week, and called it good.)

Your third item is a canning factory where berries, fruit, etc., would be put up in small cans. Well, suppose some enterprising young couple starts at that in a small way—will you encourage them by giving them home patronage? The opportunities along this line for a group of small businesses are almost limitless. The people with a capacity for taking pains to put up a product in an attractive, marketable style are few.

Suppose again, that some enterprising young couple starts to put up preserves in the kitchen for the market. The first thing to learn is that goods of excellent quality, and therefore suitable for home use, will not necessarily be attractive enough for the market. Some women put up berries, crab apples, pears, etc., in a syrup so heavy that the fruit rises to the top. Some other women leave a little of the syrup clinging on the outside of the can; not enough to show of itself but enough to afford a sticking place for dust. Some people cook berries till they are withered in appearance though tasting good. These are only a few of the things that would have to be avoided, but this sort of an enterprise does not need the importation of somebody from outside.

(We know of a woman who puts up hundreds of tumbler of jelly and ome of berries and finds a ready sale in the city.)

There is another good opportunity for some farmer to put up package goods. Norway traders ought not to need to buy a bottle of horse radish or an ounce of cayenne, and therefore the immediate sale outside the farmers in the immediate vicinity. The packing of horse radish requires special apparatus, but it is not costly. Unless properly packed and sealed it will spoil in time. As for sage, some farmer might get a lot of little waxed-paper bags, such as pepper mint drops are sold in, and have them printed with his name, etc. An ounce, or two ounces of choice leaf sage, put up in such fashion, so as to retail for 50 or 100 would be a boon to the merchant, and also to the housewife. This is another thing which might easily be spoiled in the packing, by making it so unattractive that it would not sell well.

Suppose some woman in Norway village wants to buy a pound of dried apple to the grocery store. Oxford county is an apple country, but can she find a home product? You know what will happen. The grocer will hand out a carton package put up at Soda or some other place in New York State. There is an opportunity for some good farmer of the vicinity to produce a dried apple in a desirable form. It is made from all sorts of second quality apples, natural fruit, cider apples, etc., and has no good flavor. It is hung on a string, where the flies bespeak it, and finally is packed in a box or barrel where its sticky surface catches and holds a liberal supply of dirt. I would forbid my wife bringing it into the house if I thought there were any prospect of her having access to the stuff.

But, if some farmer in Norway's vicinity will put up good quality apple properly evaporated, in a sanitary package, he ought to find a market at a fair price. Why not put this idea up to Mr. Jilson who runs the corn packery at East Otisfield? Perhaps Mr. Tucker of the McWain packery at East Waterford might have some idea on the subject, but he would not be so likely to have it as would Mr. Jilson. It isn't necessary that such an enterprise be located in Norway village. A section of such industries so as to assist a good number of little communities, instead of having them bunched in one larger community, is much better for the country as a whole.

These remarks apply also to your fourth item, a hope for a home jelly and preserving business. Your fifth item, the need for a small hospital, is good, but it looks expensive. Nurses have to work in three shifts and the cost of fuel, light, water, janitor supplies (including food, bedding, medicine, etc.), wages, maintenance of plant, etc., is something tremendous. Hospitals generally have such limited incomes that they are not able to give to the poor people the economical service which they are supposed to afford. The crew has to be maintained at times when the institution is nearly empty.

Norway certainly needs a small hospital, one with 8 to 12 beds for the sick and injured, but who is going to pay for it? This is a simple question of dollars—not dollars and cents, but dollars, dollars not by the hundred, but dollars by the thousand. If you will raise the money, you can have the hospital. Norway had some experience with an old ladies' home. A small hospital would be much more expensive than that institution could have reasonably been. You couldn't do a better thing for Norway than the starting of a hospital fund which should something let us hope have—produce the goods in the shape of a hospital. But make up your mind to have money enough to do it right.

Your sixth item is a fertilizer factory and rendering plant. It looks good at first glance, but it is another opportunity for the board of trade to employ a canvasser to ascertain the facts. Get busy.

Did you ever stop to think how Henry F. Morton started the sled factory in the kitchen of his home at North Paris, and made the first sleds with his own hands. He had many discouragements, including fires and mistakes in extending credit, the latter even leading to a business failure, so I understand, at one time, or something very much like a failure—financial embarrassment. But the sled factory stayed, and the Paris Mfg. Co. has one of the largest industries of Oxford county.

Walter H. Hamlin made a pretty small beginning at South Waterford and you can personally remember when he did it, but he has a valuable industry for his community.

Those are not the only local industries which were started in a small way and are now apparently prosperous in Oxford county. When a man starts some little enterprise, even if it is only a one-man affair, don't laugh at him because it is something peculiar. Boost him along. If there had been less laughing and more boosting in the cases where such attempts have been made, there would be a greater number of small industries in Oxford county today.

This is enough, from a

Her age was about 83 years. She was a daughter of John and Lois Thompson and resided in Hiram some sixty years, moving to South Paris some three years ago. She leaves a son and three daughters. Strong Paint

Devoe will paint your house for half or two-thirds or three-quarters your usual cost, and wear as much longer as it costs less.

It is the strongest paint there is and takes less gallons; its strength is the reason it takes less gallons.

Less gallons to buy; less money for that. Less gallons to paint; less money for that. As the painting costs more than the paint, so the saving on painters' wages is more than the saving on paint itself.

Of course, strong paint wears longer than weak; that is why Devoe wears longest.

If anyone doubts any statement above, here's the proof:

He may paint half his job Devoe, the other half any paint he likes. If Devoe doesn't take less gallons and cost less money (1) for the gallons and (2) for putting it on, no pay. If it does, Devoe is the paint that makes least first cost.

If it doesn't wear longer, we'll give him enough to repaint the whole job. The time may be one year or ten or between.

Devoe is the paint that costs least, lasts longest, and takes best care of the house all the time.

Nature's Own Wrapping Keeps Tobacco Best

No artificial package—tin, bag, or tin-foil and paper—can keep tobacco as well as the natural leaf wrapper that holds all the original flavor and moisture in the Sickle plug. When you whittle off a pipeful, you always get fresh tobacco, that burns slowly, and smokes cool and sweet.

Chopped-up, "package" tobacco loses much of its moisture before it goes into the package, and keeps getting drier all the time. And the drier it gets, the faster it burns in your pipe, and the more it bites your tongue. Only fresh tobacco gives real pipe-satisfaction—and only tobacco you cut off the Sickle plug as you use it, can be fresh.

Economical, too—no waste—no package to pay for—more tobacco. Get a Sickle plug from your dealer today.

For Preserving Eggs

DIRECTIONS—Use only perfectly fresh eggs. Stale eggs will not keep by any method of preservation. Clean out the vessel in which the eggs are to be packed (preferably a stone jar) by scalding with boiling water. Prepare the solution, using water that has first been boiled then cooled to ordinary temperature.

To each 10 quarts of water add 1 quart of water glass. Pack the eggs into the jar and pour the liquid over them, covering the eggs completely. Do not wash the eggs before packing them, as this may injure their keeping qualities by removing a natural protective coating on the outside of the shells.

Keep the eggs packed in this manner in a cool, dark place, such as a dry cool cellar.

DYSPEPSIA OVERCOME

Tone Up the Stomach with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"When you have dyspepsia your life is miserable. You have a bad taste in your mouth, a tenderness at the pit of your stomach, a feeling of puffy fullness, headache, heartburn, and sometimes nausea.

Dyspepsia is difficult digestion—that is what the word means—and the only way to get rid of it is to give vigor and tone to the stomach and the whole digestive system. Hood's Sarsaparilla, sold by all druggists, is the one medicine which acts on the stomach through the blood and also directly. Its beneficial effects are felt at once. Improvement begins immediately.

Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, makes the rich red blood that is needed for perfect digestion, and builds up the whole system. Be sure you get Hood's, for no other medicine can take its place.
